

Announcement of
Graduate School of Language and Communication
On
Fixed-Term Teaching Positions Available for Non-Thais
At Graduate School of Language and Communication
National Institute of Development Administration, Bangkok

---

Graduate School of Language and Communication (GSLC), National Institute of Development Administration is seeking qualified native speakers (three full-time lecturers and one specialist lecturers) to teach English skills development courses for graduate students on a fixed-term/renewable contract.

1. Basic Qualifications

- 1.1 Being an English native speaker
- 1.2 Possessing a master's degree in English, Linguistics, Applied Linguistics, TESL/TEFL, TESOL, or related fields from an accredited institution.

2. The Screening Process

GSLC will initially inspect the applicants' educational background, professional profile, work experiences, and academic publication list (if any) included in the application packets. If any applicants' qualifications meet our needs, such qualified applicants will be contacted to proceed the screening process including an on-site interview or any other means as appropriate or required by the search committee.

3. How to Apply

Those who are interested may submit a job application packet to Khun Jareeporn by E-mail at <chompoo19@hotmail.com>.

Announced on October 1, 2024

Kasma Suwanarak

Associate Professor Dr. Kasma Suwanarak
Dean, Graduate School of Language and Communication
National Institute of Development Administration